

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Stassen Strategy

Washington, July 16.—Now that his vicious victory in the Minnesota primary has (to quote standard editorial comment) "put him back in the race for the Republican presidential nomination," there is some danger that Mr. Harold Stassen may be given an overdose of favorable publicity. The well-known "build-up" can be overdone.

LARGELY, this danger is due to overenthusiastic friends. For example, the effort to make the result in Minnesota appear due wholly to "progressive sentiment," and a triumph for "liberalism," has no greater justification than the opposite interpretation of the defeat of Governor Griswold, whom Mr. Stassen supported in Nebraska. In both States what the politicians call the "local situation" played a larger part than any issue of national or foreign policy. It was as distressing to have a man with the isolationist record of Senator Butler successful in Nebraska, as it was gratifying to have Senator Shipstead, the aging and irreconcilable Minnesota isolationist, beaten in that State. But it is a mistake to attach too much national significance to either. Isolationism as represented by the Shipsteads, Butlers and Nyes is a dead doctrine in this country. Both parties are fully pledged to international co-operation and committed to the United Nations.

WITH a few exceptions the press, regardless of party, is overwhelmingly behind our present foreign policy. So are the people. The individual isolationists in public life (again with a few exceptions) either have changed their position (like Senator Vandenberg, for example) or are about to drop off the political vine. In both Nebraska and Minnesota, the best political judgment is that the voters in neither state were greatly stirred by the issue of internationalism versus isolationism. In both, local influences and interests were paramount. Mr. Stassen proved very strong in his own State, but had no strength at all in Nebraska—anyhow not enough to count.

IN Minnesota it seems true that Governor Thye could have beaten any one else just as easily as he did Mr. Shipstead—even though his opponent had been an internationally co-operative as Mr. Stassen himself. Besides being an attractive candidate personally, and with the support of Mr. Stassen, concededly the outstanding figure in the State, Governor Thye had behind him the strong Stassen machine, the State's most influential and largest newspapers and, by long odds, the most Brooks avenue, from South Pennsylvania avenue to Ohio avenue, at a cost of $1,440; North Lafayette avenue, from Barclay avenue to Osborne avenue, $1,377; McKinley avenue from Harding to Chelton avenues, $1,440; West Palmer street, from Stockham avenue to Harper avenue, $1,620; Stockham avenue, from West Hendrickson avenue to West Maple avenue, $900.

Several streets will receive surface treatment with tar and grit. This surface treatment will cost an estimated $4,950.

Both street improvements have been approved by common council.

Activities of Interest To All in The Various Communities

GLEANEED BY SCRIBES

Dr. Ernest G. Hesser, of Jamison, director of music in the Baltimore Public Schools, who for the past 12 years served the field of music education, is retiring from active public school music supervision as of August 31st. Dr. Hesser has served on many national committees and organizations and has occupied such important positions as director of music in the public schools of Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Albany (N. Y.), Baltimore and as head of the music education departments at Bowling Green State University (Ohio) and New York University. His work as music educator has earned him a long biographical sketch in "Who's Who in America."

When he leaves Baltimore this fall he plans to go back to his hometown of Crestline, Ohio, where he and Mrs. Hesser will continue to reside.

Irving C. Hancock, 58, Philadelphia, choirmaster and organist in Christ Church, Philadelphia, is in Quakertown Community Hospital following an automobile-truck collision at an intersection at Sellersville.

Police said a truck of the H. D. Moyer estate, Perkasie, driven by Raymond O. Detweiler, Perkasie, was struck by Hancock's vehicle.

Hancock was rushed to the hospital by the ambulance after having been given treatment by a physician. He is suffering several fractured ribs, multiple bruises and cuts.

Eight-year-old Eloise Adams, Philadelphia, an occupant in the Hancock vehicle, was treated by a physician.

Perkasie Borough Council, at an adjourned meeting, virtually committed the Electric Department to carry through an expansion program at the electric plant that entails the expenditure of approximately $275,000.

DOYLESTOWN STORE SAFE ROBBED OF $500

Carted from 1st Floor to Basement; Miss $4000 By One Night

ENTER THRU WINDOW

DOYLESTOWN, July 16.—Thieves entering Clymer's Department Store, Main street, between six p. m. Sunday, and six a. m. yesterday, carted a 350-pound safe from the first floor office to the basement, knocked off the combination and made off with $500 or more in cash. The thieves missed by one night more than $4,000 which had been banked after store closing hours on Saturday evening, it is stated.

Entrance it is believed was gained through a rear window. The proprietor, Robert L. Clymer, informed police he had bolted the doors at 6:45 Sunday evening when he left the store.

After taking the safe to the basement the thieves spread bolts of cloth on the floor, so they could examine their loot. The money taken from the safe included: $225 in $1 bills; $50 in $10 bills; $100 in $5 bills; and $125 in change.

About $4 in change was also taken from the cash register.

The Clymer store is located in the central part of the borough, one block from the police station.

Footprints were left on the floor by the thieves, and police are examining finger-prints on the safe. Merchandise in the store is said not to have been disturbed.

JOHNSTOWN (INS)—Eighteen-month-old Merle Pierce, Jr., was found asleep in his bed while a four-foot blacksnake snuggled alongside.

MR. SMITH'S HARD LUCK

For quite a few years, Mr. Harold D. Smith was Budget Secretary for the National Government. Recently he resigned. The reason, which he explained at some length, is that he found himself unable to meet his family obligations on his salary.

Studying his story reveals some most interesting details which were just plain hard luck for Mr. Smith, but highly significant for all Americans who are wondering about the future of their nation.

Of course, the most conspicuous piece of hard luck which Mr. Smith encountered is that he appears to have been, as budget secretaries go, a fairly good one in a couple of administrations which didn't give a hoot about how much was spent or where it came from.

Mr. Smith probably could have "balanced the budget" long ago, if he had been heeded. His few public statements have rather indicated that he knows the simple method by which this apparently "impossible" step could be taken—by spending no more than tax revenues provide.

But his hard luck took care that any such suggestion would be laughed down by the White House.

The current budget clearly shows how absurd the New Dealers think it is to pay attention to budgets. When Mr. Smith drew it up, on behalf of President Truman, the budget called for spending $36 billions; for $27 tax revenues; and for the difference to be made up out of what was called a "balance" in the Treasury.

Most of the American public, as well as considerably more than half of Congress, thought the tax rate was too high for comfort, and felt that the expenditures could be cut sharply. Many students of economics warned that the Treasury "balance" was not an asset at all, but a liability; and that treating it as cash would be strongly inflationary.

As in the past, Mr. Smith made some vigorous efforts to economize here and there, hoping to bring things more closely in line. There is no question that, one time and another, he has knocked out duplications, unessentials, etc., saving many millions to the American public.

Unfortunately, his activities were directed at the bung-hole of the barrel. The top, which the White House controls, was not affected. While Mr. Smith was saving millions, the White House was wasting billions. The golden stream of wasted wealth flowed forth unchecked.

Mr. Smith may have been a little boy with his finger in the budget-dyke—but the really dangerous gap in the dyke was beyond his reach.

CRUISERS ARE BEING RECONDITIONED HERE

Harding and Streeper Families Busy With Tools and Paint These Days

NEARING COMPLETION

Two Bristol couples are busily engaged in reconditioning and decorating watercraft on the lawns of their homes, and it is expected that soon both boats will be ready for the water.

The one is owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Harding, Garden street, and the other by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Streeper, Roosevelt street.

The craft which Mr. and Mrs. William Harding are reconditioning, and which they acquired last fall, is a 36-foot cabin cruiser. The cruiser, formerly used in the commercial fishing trade, has not been given a name as yet.

The cabin has been lengthened 3½ feet to accommodate a galley and a lavatory aft of the sleeping quarters. The cabin seats, which will be finished in green leatherette, are so constructed that the backs of the seats can be raised to form the upper berths. Thus sleeping accommodations will be provided for four. Beneath the seats are being built storage closets, while at the front of the cabin is the storage space for life preservers.

The small galley has a refrigerator with 2½ cubic feet of refrigeration. The refrigerator was built by Mr. Harding, who has provided proper insulation and lined it with porcelain. The melting ice drains into the sink space adjoining the refrigerator. Beneath the sink is food storage space. On top, to the rear, will be a small stove, and to the side a water cooler. The craft's 40-gallon water tank will be on the

Organizations Urged To Co-Operate in State-Wide Celebration

Members of the board of directors of Bristol Chamber of Commerce gathered on the second floor of the McCrory building last evening, with Harold N. Crooker, second vice-president, in charge.

The chief item under discussion was "Pennsylvania Week," plans for which are being outlined locally by the Chamber of Commerce. "Pennsylvania Week" is to be celebrated from September 17th to 22nd. The Chamber of Commerce will have another session on Monday, July 29th, to formulate more fully plans for the event in Bristol.

The plan generally is to stress what Pennsylvania as a state has to be proud of, what she is doing and can do, the historical importance attached to the state, etc. Churches, clubs, lodges and other organizations are being asked to recognize the week in a special way. Business and industry are likewise being asked to co-operate in this "Boost Pennsylvania" week, showing the people as a whole those things that are peculiar to the state, and the numerous things in the commonwealth of which Pennsylvanians should be proud.

ONE MAN'S OPINION - -

By Walter Kiernan
(Distributed by International News Service)

Mr. Truman's statement that "Our people are earning more money than ever before" put three auditors on my books but they couldn't find it.

The President confused sober statement with an old gag - - the gag ran "Me and my boss made five hundred a week between us - - he gets $475 and I get $25."

If "our people are earning more money than ever before" some of "our people" haven't heard about it.

I know a school teacher who has been telling children for 20 years how Washington crossed the Delaware. She's got him across nearly 20 times and she still hasn't got a raise.

Letter carriers just got their first increase since the post-office department sold them their uniforms out of surplus Confederate stock.

Millions of fixed salary workers can testify that they aren't earning more money - - maybe the President spoke from notes written on the back of an old letter from Phil Murray.

Some of "our people" are earning more money than ever before - - others are eatin' less than ever before.

TEN OUT OF TWELVE

According to the United States
Employment Service, 10 out of 12 veterans discharged by June had either found jobs or gone back to school. Considering the magnitude of the job this is a remarkable record.

Millions upon millions of men
have left the armed services since the end of the war and the total is being boosted by thousands monthly. The bulk of this vast demobilization came at a time when industry was in the throes of reconversion, and when many factories were shut down by strikes.

The figures cited by the USES
show how well American employers have met the challenge of absorbing these returning servicemen in civilian jobs. As a matter of fact, the problem has been met better than these statistics imply.
It is safe to assume that a goodly percentage of the two out of 12
still unemployed are men who want to take their time and look around before going back to work.
Moreover, many others have preferred to draw unemployment pay to taking jobs with pay not in the top brackets.

Despite the good record that has been made so far there is still room for the vigorous programs
which are being pushed by various veterans' organizations to open additional job opportunities for returning servicemen. Many veterans are still without work
and more are being discharged
daily.

It will be harder to place this last group than those who left the service earlier. But until the country does its best to see that these men have an opportunity to work
it will not have fully discharged its obligation to those who served in uniform.

OKLAHOMA

The other night "Oklahoma"
marked up its 1,405th New York showing and thereby set a new record in the field of musical productions. Its nearest rival, "Hell-zapoppin'" counted a mere 1,404 performances on Broadway. And, as the new champion is still going strong, it must be termed far and away the most successful offering in its class ever put on the stage.

Still more remarkable, few of those who profess special knowledge in such matters would have cared to predict any such spectacular run when it opened on March 31, 1943. In fact, the prophecy who did venture forecasts on the basis of earlier tryouts were convinced that the show would have a short life. They said it wasn't funny enough, that the public wouldn't go for the kind of dancing it relied on, that it lacked stars. They said a number of other things to the same general effect.

But they were wrong. They could hardly have been more wrong, as the record shows. The ater-goers liked "Oklahoma!" and took it to their bosom. In New York alone the musical has played to 2,107,611 persons who paid $5,442,614 to see and hear it. The road company has done almost as well, with an audience over a span of 1,263 performances in 23
cities numbered at 1,918,454.

MR. SMITH'S HARD LUCK

In six months, the budget figures changed considerably.

For the worse.
By including items of spending to which the government is committed, but which it conveniently left out of the budget, and by adding in increases, Senator Taft recently figured that the outlay will be $47 billion instead of $36 billion.

White House optimists have made a new "guess"
about tax receipts, which of course is a subject no one knows too much about until taxes actually are paid; the new "estimate" is $36 billions. Considering the demoralization in industry resulting first from the disastrous strikes and second from the President's veto of the compromise OPA plan, it is hard to see what warrant (other than inflation) may exist for this one-third jump in predicted tax revenues.

At any event, Mr. Smith's budget is further than ever out of balance. No wonder he was discouraged.

Mr. Smith's hard luck extended to other fields. It was his misfortune to be part of a regime which considered any $10,000 a year income sheer "capitalism," and punished it accordingly; one which had inflated dollars to the point where ten thousand of them, once a comfortable living for anyone anywhere no longer will buy enough to keep Mr. Smith's family satisfied; one which has pack-jammed Washington with so many unneeded
"public servants" that housing and living costs have been bid up out of reason.

The more Mr. Smith knows about being a good budget secretary, the more unhappy he must have been while all this was going on. For his own peace of mind, it was high time for him to resign.

Unfortunately for him, he will be mentioned in future histories (if he is not considerably forgotten in them) as the man who was budget secretary while the most hopelessly unbalanced budgets in all time were being drawn—and then overspent; and as the man who was technically in charge of American finances while we were incurring debts which will be a staggering burden for many generations to come.

It is his misfortune that the great enemy of free governments, the foe for the control of which budgeting was invented, got its real stranglehold on American economy
during his tenure. That enemy is inflation.

And it is his misfortune that his two successive chiefs insisted on a practice which, from the budget point of view, is the most immoral of the so-called "deadly sins"
—that of passing the bills of the present generation's
wastefulness over to children still unborn.

Yes, it was time for Mr. Smith to resign. The budget secretary is the real "forgotten man" of the New Deal.

The Great Game of Politics

money. That combination is enough to win in any primary anywhere
any time. With all that, the reported nervousness of the Stassen supporters is hard to understand.

AND certainly the cries that the result was a great triumph for "liberalism" were a little too loud. The truth is that some of Mr. Stassen's friends are worried about this "liberalism" publicity and wish he would find it possible sometime, somewhere to make a speech or statement without dwelling upon the necessity of "liberalizing" the Republican party and stressing his championship of "progressive principles." This desire is not in the least because they are personally reactionary or opposed to progress.
It is because they are extremely anxious to have Mr. Stassen nominated and do not believe he is going about it in the right way.

FIRST, they point out that the presidential nomination is made in convention by the politicians and not by the people in primaries.
second, that in the 1948 convention
no one will be nominated on the first few ballots and in the end a combination has got to be formed to get a majority. There is no such thing as sweeping a convention off its feet. As these friends now see difficult for him to form such a combination in two ways: (1) by ignoring the organization politicians in the various states instead of seeking friendly relations with them; (2) by creating resentment
among the other nomination aspirants by proclaiming himself the shining champion of "liberalism"
and "progressive principles" thus conveying the idea that all others are moss-backed members of the "Old Guard," reactionary tools of the interests, the Tory type.

IT IS further pointed out that journalistic gentlemen who in magazines and newspapers, portray Mr. Stassen as the one "true liberal" in the Republican party are almost all of the New Deal persuasion and approve Mr. Stassen largely because of their belief that at heart he is a New Dealer. This,
it is argued, is exactly what neither the Republican party nor the country wants—and in particular, they do not want an imitation New Dealer. The Stassen appeal, they say, to the literary, theatrical and artistic "advanced thinkers" is no way to win the Republican nomination, and Mr. Stassen ought to be practical enough to know it.

IN addition, it is contended, the word "liberal" in recent years has been so pre-empted by the radical labor spokesmen and governmental spenders of the Wallace type that its adoption as a label indicates a leaning in that direction repugnant
to a public fed up with the whole business and just about realizing its essential phoniness. Altogether, these Stassen friends make out
quite a case for a change in Stassen strategy and for a little less appeal to the extreme New Deal group, now hard pressed to find a man to tie to. They may be mistaken—these Stassen friends—but they are sincere in their ideas,
and extremely anxious to get their favorite nominated.

Meat From Short Ribs of Beef, cut into small squares, canned mushrooms, potatoes and carrots are the main ingredients of this beef and mushroom casserole, excellent hot dish for a summer supper party.

SUMMER SUPPER PARTY

By ALICE DENHOFF

Summer supper parties are more likely to be impromptu than those held in the winter, which are usually planned in advance.

In the informal season, friends drop over to see how the garden's getting on, play a game of tennis or croquet, or inspect the outdoor carpentry project you're working on this summer. And then an invitation to stay and take pot luck seems to come out naturally.

So the supply shelf needs to be kept stocked thoughtfully during the warm weather, so that it's easy to make pot luck interesting by drawing up the dish already planned for the day, or tossing to guests a surprise one in a hurry.

Add tender canned mushrooms, for instance, to a meat loaf or a casserole of left-overs. Use nut meats or walnuts to give dash to the salad and serve crisp assorted crackers in place of bread. Then add taste-tugging soft drinks for a party touch. A soft drink punch topped with tiny roses floating on lime or lemon slices is both dainty and delicious, served ice-cold on a hot day. Easy to make, too!

Salad extras for the healthful salad bowl include small pearl onions with a meat salad. Or try blending ketchup into the mayonnaise. To pep up a tossed green salad, sprinkle cheese cracker crumbs over French dressing, having first rubbed the bowl with garlic clove. Add capers or chopped sweet pickle to mayonnaise for fish salad, and halved nut meats or cream dressing with walnuts to fruit salad.

An excellent hot dish for your summer supper party is a casserole of beef and mushrooms, prepared as follows:

For 6 servings, get 2 lbs. short ribs of beef and cut into small individual squares. Flour them with seasoned flour and brown in a little fat in heavy skillet. Add one small sliced onion, 1/4 tsp. thyme, thyme, vinegar, and one c. water to drippings in skillet; stir till well blended; pour over meat. Cover and roast in 300 degrees F. oven about 2 hrs. or until tender. Add 2 chopped stalks celery, an 8-oz. can sliced mushrooms and liquid, 6 scalloids, 2 or 3 sliced carrots and 3 medium-sized potatoes, quartered. Continue cooking 30-40 mins. Add more water, if necessary.

Now for the punch that will turn any supper into a party. Place 12 small bottles lemon-lime soda and 4 small bottles ginger ale in refrigerator to chill for an hour or so. Cut a small lime into 5 or 6 slices and pull a tiny rosebud through the center of each so that the blossom rests on the slice; trim stem short. Place slices on plate in refrigerator while making punch, for which pour one c. maraschino cherry juice and 2 tbsps. lime juice into punch bowl. Add the well-chilled carbonated beverages. Float roses in lime slices on top. Makes about one gallon of punch.

Set Out the Salad and cold drinks in help-yourself fashion, providing a choice of beverages, as well as a prepared "Rosebud Punch."

Lovely to Look At, and equally lovely to taste, is this Rosebud Punch, with rosebuds floating on lime slices like blossoms in a lily pond.

FASHION PARADE

By Max Factor, Jr.
(Famous Make-up Advisor to the Screen Stars Writing for I. N. S.)
HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Analyze each step of your beautifying procedures. See if some of them couldn't be more thoroughly or expertly done. Knowing and practicing the broad basic principles and rules of make-up and grooming are not enough to always guarantee the command of perfection in appearance. There are many detailed "final touch" steps which are essential to such perfection.

For instance, failure to remove surplus lipstick is a cosmetic detail which is altogether too frequently overlooked, and which can greatly detract from the command of the ultimate in appearance glamour.

Another frequently apparent lack in make-up detail is supplied by those women who apply lipstick only to the outer surfaces of their lips. Then, when their lips are parted to speak or to smile, there is immediately visible an unattractive contrast between the made-up outer lip and the unmade-up inner area. Lipstick should be extended at least slightly in beyond the area which is visible when the lips are pressed together.

Failing to smooth the face powder applications offers another flaw in detail which often prevents make-up from being perfect. A powder brush is not only effective in removing surplus powder, but also makes it practically impossible for an uneven, streaked powder surface to become apparent. This is more than can be said of a powder puff, as far as smoothing purposes are concerned.

Fingernails which stand in need of manicuring, or which should have their enamel replaced, also offer a serious small detail hazard to feminine appearances. A surprisingly large number of women, who are otherwise completely expert in their grooming, err in their attitude toward their fingernails. They overlook the fact that the hands are regularly and frequently in eye-catching motion. So don't neglect the conditioning of your nails. Such neglect won't be overlooked.

The wearing of glasses brings another often overlooked problem in make-up detail. If glasses have lenses which magnify to any great degree, the appearance of eye make-up should be diminished to a corresponding extent. Also, women who wear glasses should see to it that any eye make-up applications are reduced and smoothed to such a degree that no surplus remains to flake off on the glasses. Thickly applied eyelash make-up frequently does this.

Efficiently COMPACT

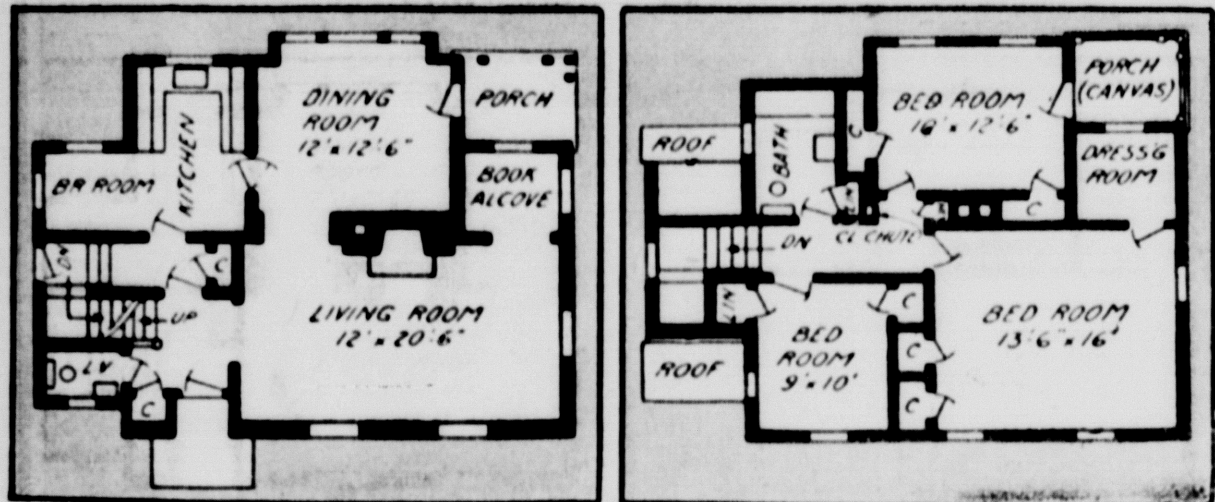

By MARION CLYDE McCARROLL

Here is a well-planned home for an average family.

Nothing particularly unusual about its appearance, but a good, comfortable dwelling, efficiently compact in the way the interior space has been accounted for. Particularly nice features of the plan are the "extra dividends" tucked away on each floor—the breakfast nook and book alcove downstairs, and the dressing room above it, giving the family a little additional elbow room.

On the outside, the front wall of the first story is done in white brick veneer, providing interesting contrast to the dark-colored clapboards used for the second story. The second-story overhang, and the recessed front door are other architectural points that give the house individuality.

Brick Veneer on the First Story front wall, and dark-colored in the appearance of this neat, average-sized house. Two clapboards on the second story, provide interesting contrast windows at right of recessed doorway are in living room.

Efficient Planning Makes good use of all available space both downstairs and up. Note the breakfast room that is off the kitchen, the book alcove off the living room, and the small dressing room just above it.

Troopers Ordered To Crack-Down on Speeders

HARRISBURG, July 16—(INS)—State Police Commissioner C. M. Wilhelm emphasized today that troopers were under orders to crack down on speeders and reckless drivers.

"We are exerting a steady pressure to maintain safety on the highways," Wilhelm asserted.

"That pressure means: First, carefully observing drivers on the highways because we feel that 10 per cent of the drivers are causing all the trouble. Second, we are observing conditions of automobiles."

"Those drivers who insist upon traveling at speeds ranging up to 50 miles an hour are by far the worst operators on the roads today and are included in the group causing the most accidents," Wilhelm emphasized.

"Motorists who insist upon violating the law will be arrested," he asserted.

He reported that approximately 75 per cent of the State Police force was on duty patrolling the commonwealth's more than 40,000 miles of highways.

The force currently musters 1349 men including 129 recruits undergoing instruction at the Hershey Training School.

Wilhelm pointed out that between May 15 and June 30 State Policemen inspected more than 103,000 automobiles and trucks on Pennsylvania highways, of which 35,681 were found to have mechanical defects.

Automotive equipment scrutinized by troopers included headlights, tail lights, windshield wipers and tires. Trucks were weighed for overloading.

"We are taking all the precautions we can to prevent accidents and doing everything possible to assist motorists to drive the highways safely," Wilhelm stated.

MONT ALTO—(INS)—The Department of Forests and Waters has revealed that one of the oldest table mountain pine trees in the world stands atop Pine Mountain. The tree, which rears 74 feet, is more than 100 years old and measures 30 inches in diameter a half-foot from the ground.

rear deck, just outside the galley. On the opposite side from the galley is the lavatory.

A bridge is planned, this being to the rear of the cabin, while on the deck, aft, will be placed an awning for protection of fishermen from the sun's rays.

The color plan of the cabin is to be green and white, the seats being in the green leatherette, and the floor being covered with green linoleum. Painted surfaces will be white, with natural red oak trim.

The cabin has rectangular windows, which will be provided with screens.

The exterior of the superstructure is to be painted white with gray trim.

The Hardings hope to have the boat in the water this month, planning to launch it in the Delaware.

They are considering an eight or 10 days cruise in September, possibly going down the Delaware, then via the canal to a South Jersey resort.

The raised-deck cruiser which Mr. and Mrs. Henry Streeper, are reconditioning, is a 26-foot craft. Renovations are about completed on this, "The Termite." The boat has a galley, a "head" (lavatory), and sleeping accommodations for two. Although the interior of the cabin has not been finished, the color plan is to be white.

This is a former navy boat. Mr. Streeper, desiring to secure a larger boat, plans to sell "The Termite" when he completes renovations and decorating.

Student-Teachers May Be Employed Full-Time

HARRISBURG, July 16—(INS)—The Department of Public Instruction announced today that school districts will be permitted to employ student-teachers on a full-time basis during the 1946-47 term.

The ruling, aimed at counterbalancing a shortage of 3900 teachers, was prompted by a decline in the number of teachers holding wartime emergency certificates and tardiness of former service men and women in returning to their classrooms, according to Dr. Henry Klonow, director of teacher education and certification.

He predicted 1900 college seniors could be obtained from 59 accredited colleges. The remainder of the vacancies would be filled by substitute instructors certified to teach for brief periods during the shortage, he added.

Students assigned to teaching posts would be entitled to salaries customarily paid graduates, Klonow explained, but they would remain under the supervision of colleges.

The system was placed on trial in 1942, but was thrown out of gear by the high labor demands of war industries and depleted student enrollments, Klonow stated.

He predicted some emergency arrangement for replacing qualified instructors would be necessary during the next five years until a normal, adequate supply of teachers was reached.

Only 600 of 1000 teachers enlisting in the armed services during the war had resumed old posts while approximately one-fifth of the 5000 emergency certified instructors had resigned, Klonow pointed out.

"Many veterans are seeking additional education under the G. I. Bill of Rights," he explained, "and many veterans wives are returning to their homes."

The greatest turnover was noted in elementary, art, music, science and vocational education fields, Klonow reported.

Engine Braker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Braker, Cedar street, had a birthday party on Saturday when he celebrated his third anniversary with his friends and playmates.

The dining room was decorated in green and yellow streamers, with baskets of candy as favors. Each child also received a book and crayons.

Prizes for pinning the "tail" on the donkey were given to Joseph Hetherington and "Bobby" Carter. Others who were guests: Clifford McCue, Alice Marie Hanford, "Bet-

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Samuel R. Gaskell
Pastor
Tullytown Methodist Church

"Lord increase our faith." Almighty God, give us the hand that grasps the invisible, the eye that sees the unseen, the sense that discerns the Divine. We are so pressed on every side by the material, there is ever the danger of losing sight of the spiritual, and forgetting "there are more things in heaven and earth than we dream of." But we ask for faith, overcoming faith. It is Thy gift. Grant us then the faith that will enable us to say: "I know in whom I have believed." Amen.

PARKER MAKES DEBUT AND WINS FOR VOLTZ-TEXACO

Relieves Carey in Third and Blanks the American Steel Players

GAME ENDS AT 6 TO 5

Carlin Plays Second Base For The Gas Men

TRENTON, N. J., July 16.—Gene Parker, newly-acquired hurler for the Voltz-Texaco team, made his debut last evening in a relief role and what a performance he put on! He took Al Carey's place with the bags loaded in the third and retired the American Steel batters the remainder of the tilt without a base hit.

Parker's pitching enabled the Voltz-Texaco team to come from behind to beat out the Steelers, 6-5. "Tommy" Carlin, former Captain of Notre Dame, playing second for the gas-men tied the score in the seventh with a home run while in the eighth the winning run was pushed over when Petrino walked, Pagnotta hit safely, Procaccino walked, and Risoldi "squeezed" over Petrino with the winning run.

Reynolds Funari hit a home run with Griggs on base for Voltz in the fourth frame.

FORECASTS HELP

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—Manpower reconversion in California is being aided by monthly employment forecasts predicting two months in advance how many persons will be employed in different occupations throughout the state, the Council of State Governments reports. Need for such means to facilitate labor reconversion in California and help prepare in advance for labor fluctuations is indicated by the fact that during the spring alone nearly 10,000 new trade enterprises were established in the state.

ST. ANN'S CHALKS UP WIN OVER HARRIMAN

St. Ann's A. A. chalked up its 26th victory of the Suburban League race last evening on the Maple Beach field, scoring six runs in the eighth to beat the Harriman team, 12-5.

Both starting hurlers, "Hystie" Grimes and "Charlie" Whyno failed to finish. Grimes gave way to Hal Shackleton in the fourth and Whyno received help from "Danny" Keegan in the seventh.

SHOE SHORTAGE

Shoes cannot be purchased except by special licenses issued by the Ministry of Supplies and only granted to persons completely without shoes.

RODRIGUEZ AND CARTER TO BATTLE IN ST. ANN'S ARENA

Two Well-Known Scrappers To Square Off Here Thursday Night

GOOD RING RECORDS

Sugarman and Simmons To Meet In Return Match Here

Jolting Joe Rodriguez, transplanted Philadelphian, and Jarring Jimmy Carter, crack New York scrapper, will square off in the feature eight-round boxing bout on Promoter Sammy Moffo's second show at St. Ann's Arena, Thursday night. Elated over the turnout at his initial card last Thursday, Promoter Moffo, an ex-boxer who has revived the art of self-defense in Bristol, also announced that along with Carter will come Freddy Archer, New Jersey boy, who is currently a contender for welterweight honors. Carter is in the same stable as Archer.

The bout will bring together two boxers who have great ring records. The Philadelphian, who came here last winter from Texas, is undefeated in 16 boxing tries, while the Bronxite has won 12 and lost but a single scrap.

Both are fair punchers, while Carter may be a slightly better boxer. Rodriguez needs not to depend on boxing skill because he is a firm believer of that old adage, "A good offense is better than any defense."

The fans are still raging over last week's program in which Walter Stevens, a handsome Newark, N. J., lad, scored a technical knockout over Patsy Zaccano in the feature bout. Not only did Stevens live up to advance publicity but the entire program was satisfactory. Promoter Moffo promises better cards as the season progresses and soon will show an outstanding name.

Promoter Moffo has arranged a six-round semi-final between Jack Sugarman, an ex-Marine who hails from Media, against Bob Simmons, of Dayton, N. J. This is a return match and should be a slugfest as each fighter throws plenty of leather.

Three other bouts, completing the bill, are in the making and will be announced tomorrow. The initial bout will be put on at 8:30 o'clock sharp.

CALVARY ASSURED OF TIE FOR 1ST-HALF TITLE

Calvary Baptist assured themselves of at least a tie for the first half title of the Lower Bucks Church Softball League when they defeated third place Eddington, 8-5, at Croydon last night, and thereby eliminated Eddington from the first half crown. In the other games Presbyterian scored an easy 11-1 win over Bensalem to assure themselves of no worse than a tie for 4th place; and Hulmeville outshined St. James, 14-10, to creep to 5th place.

Calvary got off to an early lead against Eddington, scoring two in the first and adding a quarter in the third on a walk, three singles and a double. "Chart" Tomlinson hit his 4th home run to account for the 7th run; and a sacrifice between two singles produced the last run. Meantime Maris "Bill" Hart was coasting along behind a big lead, holding the losers without a hit nor Presbyterians scored an easy 11-1 win over Bensalem to assure themselves of no worse than a tie for 4th place; and Hulmeville outshined St. James, 14-10, to creep to 5th place.

Yehle doubled to drive in two and scored on Abe Stiles' single. But Hart regained his "stuff" in time to quell the uprising, striking out the last batter.

Manager Jake DeWilde led Presbyterians to their victory over Bensalem with a double, triple and home run to drive in 7 of his team's 11 runs. He doubled in the second to drive in two, tripled in the 4th etc. score two more, then homered in the fifth with two on to account for three more runs. Dick Little also hit a homer for Presbyterian in the 6th. Bensalem scored all its runs in the 4th on singles by Charlie Vanzant, Gottsabend, Lorenzo, and Bates; and a double by Bill Yeagle, who led the losers at the plate with 3 hits in four trips.

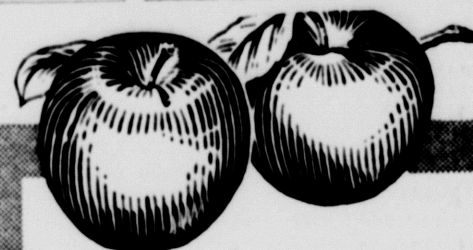

It was a "slam-bang" affair out at Hulmeville with the home club coming up with 11 runs in the 6th inning at a time when they were trailing 10-3, to score a 14-10 decision over St. James. In that hectic frame four St. James hurlers paraded to the mound, and gave up 7 bases on balls that forced in four runs. Ken Comly singled twice to drive in 3 runs, while Herm Becker drove in two with a double; and both Rev. Gay and Charles Martin dale drove in one each with a single. Martindale and Comly each had hits for Hulmeville; and Carlen and Thomas had 3 for St. James. McCut of St. James was the leading hitter with 4-for-4.

FIRE PROTECTION

CHICAGO—(INS)—Fire protection ratings were improved in 1 U. S. cities over 10,000 population last year, the International City Managers' Association reports. Cities with ratings improved over last year are: Alameda and Long Beach, Calif.; Elizabeth, N. J.; Little Rock, Ark.; West Haven, Conn.; Dalton, East Point and Thomasville, Ga.; Phenix City, Ala.; Dover, Del.; St. Augustine, Fla.; East Moline, Ill.; Huron, S. Dak.; and Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.

MEDIA—(INS)—Relatives were mystified at a request in the will of former South Carolina Cong. T. H. Miller. He directed that a book he had written, "Slavery of the Klux Klan," be published. Then was learned that he had been run out of his native state astride a rail by the KKK in 1878.

SMOOTH . . . IT'S "FLAVOR-AGED"
